Obituary.

On Saturday evening, May 27th, 1905, Mrs. Mary Yates departed this life at her home near Fairplay.

She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fields, and was forty-seven years of age. She was united in marriage to Mr. W. B. Yates, and about eighteen years ago, she joined the Baptist church. In the shadow of the cross her days were spent and her gentle spirit has returned to God, who gave it.

During her last days, she bore her sufferings Christlike, for He sustained her, giving her spiritual strength and comforting her.

We have the assurance that she has entered into that rest, that awaits all the faithful ones. May we all so live that when the summons comes, we may be prepared to meet her, where parting will be no more.

Now the good Shepherd leadeth her Through pastures green and fair, Onward and upward be our aim To meet our loved one there.

The Footic Medal Contest.

In the oratorical contest at the Lindsay-Wilson, Monday night, there were four entries. A. W. Glasgow, W. A. Grant, Mont M. Murrell and A. Allen.

The speeches were all good and well delivered. There were several points to be considered by the judges—Rev. S. G. Shelley, Rev. May and Mrs. W. C. Clements. At the conclusion the points kept by each judge were compiled, showing Mr. Grant was the winner. Prof. Frogge, in a few well chosen words, presented the medal. The music for occasion was furnished by Mrs. Rounds and her pupils, and was scientific and delightful.

Prof. S. L. Last Thursday evening about 12 o'clock while Mr. Sid Barbee, Judge W. W. Jones and daughter were returning from Campbellsville they discovered fire in the saw mill plant owned by Dr. N. M. Hancock, located on Mr. Creed Hood's farm, near the pike. They stopped, aroused Mr. Hood and others and by prompt action the mill was saved.

Mr. R. K. Young has been giving close attention to the building of his barn for several days past and when the builders drive the last nail it will likely be in the last board for the entire work is moving upward. It is being completed as they go up, the cover to be the last, the philosophy of the move is to leave it with the newest roof possible.

Green county sold twelve hogheads of Burley tobacco in Louisville last week. The highest price was $10.50 and the lowest $5.05. The same county sold two hogheads of dark at $3.00 and $5.56. Taylor county sold three hogheads at $5.40 to $4.50.

The Jasmine Spray.

A thought unspoken, a hand unpressed,
A look unseen and a love unguessed;
And souls that are mated live apart,
Never to know how heart beat with heart!
Never to whisper and know the truth—
Till gone for aye is their wasted youth!
For she did not know how my pulses leapt
As over my temples her tresses swept!
When archly she gave me the jasmine spray
Down by the brookside that evening in May;
I gazed in her eyes 'till her cheeks grew red—
That was long ago, and our youth has fled!
Now a faded woman I wait for death,
Murmuring a name beneath her breath;
And a cynical man now scoffs and jeers at night and love, but with bitter tears
Kisses at night as he kneels to pray,
A faded wreath of a jasmine spray.

The patriotic little girl, Miss Dorothy Burton, who lives on the old battle field at Mill Springs, and who has for several years past decorated with her own hands the tree under which the Confederate general Zollicoffer fell, has recently received in kindly remembrance of her thoughtfulness from Rev. T. B. Larrimarr, of Florence, Ala. three elegant volumes for her library. The donor in this case was soldier under Zollicoffer, and was one of the pall bearers that officiated at his burial. Miss Dorothy may go to the Confederate Reunion at Louisville upon invitation of her old rebel friends.—Somerset Journal.

An Object Lesson.

While there are indications that the presidential back-bone is already sagging from its announced determination of buying Panama canal supplies in the open markets of the world, the object lesson taught has already indelibly impressed the public mind.

If it is a good thing for the United States to go into the markets and buy things, why isn't it a good thing for the private individual?

If the Government can save money by applying free trade principles, why could not the private individual do likewise?

If it is right for the Government to call in the free trade countries for competitive biddings where is the justice and right of law that excludes these same countries from American home markets, thereby forcing the individual to pay double price for the same goods that the Government saves millions of dollars on by buying in the open markets.

If a high protective tariff has brought about these amazing and iniquitous conditions—conditions now freely admitted by the Republicans themselves—is high protection right?

But the most striking feature of this magnificent object lesson, is the bill of particulars furnished by the protectionists themselves.

Tow ships needed in the construction of the Panama canal will cost $1,400,000 if bought and built in high tariff America. These same ships can be purchased for $750,000 in free trade England. The difference in prices goes into the pockets of the protected manufacturers of the materials used in ship building.

The steel rail for the Panama Railroad costs $33 here. Exactly this identical rail is sold in the European markets for $20. It is sold by the same American company in both cases.

This is one way of stating that the steel trust, under the present high protective law, charges its American customers, and the American government itself, $13 a ton more than it charges foreigners for the same goods.

Following are a few articles needed in the construction of the Panama canal together with the American and foreign prices. It should be borne in mind that American trusts and corporations manufacture these articles, sell them abroad and sell them at these prices, compelling their home people, under the protection given by the high tariff laws, to pay the higher prices:

Axes can be bought abroad at $2.20 a dozen, they cost consumers $3.25. Wire nails costs $1.35 per hundred pounds abroad. They cost $2.25 here. Saws can be bought from 22 to 40 per cent cheaper, levels and plumbs 37 per cent cheaper, shovels 9 per cent, hinges 30 per cent, tackle block 11 per cent, wrenches 7 per cent, jacks 33 per cent, drills 14 per cent, vices 25 per cent. The above list might be continued indefinitely.

The government proposes to buy wherever it can get its goods the cheapest, because to do otherwise would be to swindle the treasury and tax-payers by collusion with the contractors. But the people are prevented, by a high tariff law, from protecting themselves against exactly the same robbery. Therefore they must submit and are daily submitting to robbery—robbery enforced and protected by law.

The government rebels when confronted by the extortions and exactions under which the public suffers all the time and goes abroad to buy. But the people are forced to buy at home and submit to robbery by the trusts and corporations.

The government sneaks off in-

EXCURSIONS TO THE WEST

Address
JOHN SEBASTIAN,
Pass. Traf. Mgr., Rock Island System,
CHICAGO.

To the Pacific Coast—to California, Oregon, Washington—round-trip, long transit and return limits, liberal stop-over privileges.

The rate is practically on the basis of one fare for the round trip. Of course, if you wish to visit both California and Oregon or Washington, the cost is slightly more.

These reduced rates are in effect on certain dates in months of May to October, inclusive. They apply from all Eastern points via Chicago, St. Louis or Memphis gateways. The Rock Island System will take you up in either Chicago or St. Louis, or at hundreds of other Middle West points and carry you to the Coast in through Standard or Tourist Sleepers with unexcelled Dining Car service. The Rock Island also affords a choice of routes: on the "Scenic" route you can stop off in Colorado—see Salt Lake City—visit Yellowstone National Park; on the "Southern" route you can go via El Paso, thru New Mexico, then "up coast" to San Francisco and on to Portland or Seattle if desired.

In short, these Pacific Coast excursions offer an unusually good chance to see our western country in a comprehensive manner.

If you desire to go only as far as Colorado, there are excursion rates in effect to that section and return, all summer long, specially reduced June 30 to July 4, August 12 and 13, and August 30 to September 4. Extension trips to Ogden or Salt Lake and return at low cost also.

From September 15 to October 31, 1905, one-way tourist or "colonist" tickets will be on sale to California and the Pacific Northwest—about half regular fare.

If interested, send name and address on this coupon, designating which booklet wanted and to what point you plan to go. Name probable date of start also, so we can advise definitely with respect to rates, etc.

What a position for a great government to occupy!

What a magnificent object-lesson it is!—Glasgow Times.

Admiral Togo, the sly old sea dog, it is said never had changed his plans after formulating them, he simply laid hid in a safe and secluded harbor just off the Thushima Islands, concluding that a Rojevinsky as soon as he was heavily reinforced, would attempt to pass through the Korean Straits as the nearest and most available way to Vladivostok and he was right in his conclusions and when he sighted the Russians he came boldly forth to battle, taking the enemy by surprise and inflicting a mortal blow that almost swept the entire fleet out of existence, being one of the greatest victories in the history of naval warfare.

The Mikado's Ancestors.

Writing to the Mikado. Admiral Togo says: "That we have gained a success beyond our expectation is due to the brilliant virtues of your Majesty and to the protection of the spirits of your imperial ancestors and not to the action of any human being."

That was very polite of Togo, but rather unpleasantly suggestive to the civilization at large into which the little yellow nation in the Orient aspires to bring its influence.

Ancestors are all very well, but they are not up-to-date as ruling influences, and modern civilization doesn't like the idea of their mixing in, no matter whose they are or how illustrious they may be. The proper place for the spirits of ancestors is in the grave yards and not around battlefields, parliaments, naval engagements, courts of law, universities, department stores, ball parks and other leading institutions and agencies of the present.

We have outgrown ancestors in most civilizations and if we find them walking about the streets we would have them arrested. In this country the spirit of our forefathers is even being eliminated from our Constitution.

If Japan is going to get into the game internationally as a shining light it will have to cut out the ancestors. We couldn't let Africa in with its Mumbo Jumbo, or China with the Honorable Joss. Civilization won't have them on the premises at all.

By these observations no reflection is intended on the Mikado's ancestors as such. Undoubtedly they were very pleasant people and the sort one would have cared to know, provided they were burned a little less fire works. Fireworks—that's another difficulty about the Jap ancestors as a rule. They seem to have a weakness for fireworks and are so often accompanied by pyrotechnical displays. The mere mention of them justifies a shower of rockets. If Jap ancestors got to circulating freely in civilization these days they would raise insurance rates like everything.

Our advice to the Mikado is to keep his forefathers in the background.—St. Louis Republic.

Jumped His Job.

We are told that an old darkey was given a job in a graveyard in this country, the other day, to cut up a fallen tree. Along about dusk a man in that neighborhood strolling by, noticed him at work, and picking up a handful of pebbles, hid in some tall weeds and let fly one of the stones at him. The darkey looked up quickly, expecting to see some bad boy, but no one being in sight he gazed up and down in puzzled bewilderment, and shaking his head went back to his employment. After working diligently a moment, another pebble hit him on the back, and again he stopped and peered about, and up in the trees, trying to decide where it came from. Being unsuccessful, he started to work again, keeping one wary eye open for a possible intruder, but when apparently out of space, another pebble hit him, he dropped his tools, took several flying leaps to the fence and bounded over it without hitting a plank. He hired a man to go after his tools.—Harrodsburg Herald.

The Wheat Crop.

A Chicago correspondent of the New York Herald has made a careful estimate of the wheat crop of 1905, which he thinks the largest since 1901.

The winter wheat crop in fourteen States is estimated at 348,000,000 bushels. To Kansas is assigned 75,000,000, to Nebraska 39,000,000, and to Missouri 37,000,000 bushels, these three being the largest producers. To Kentucky is assigned 10,000,000 bushels. The total winter crop in all the States is put at 411,000,000 bushels.

The spring wheat crop is involved in more uncertainty, because harvest is further away, but on the basis of the present condition it is figured at 259,000,000 bushels. Adding the two together we get a grand total of 670,000,000 bushels. This gives the largest crop since 1901, when the figures were 748,460,218 bushels.

The correspondent says that the farmers throughout the central part of Kentucky are well agreed that the State will have a better crop than it had last year—"the best yield per acre in a decade." A Fayette county farmer is quoted as saying that this will be Kentucky's banner year for wheat.

The amount of a crop in the United States is never a subject upon which the makers of estimates can agree. The Herald's figures appear, however, to have been compiled with care.—Courier Journal.

Rotation of Crops in the Garden.

I aim to change the location every year of most varieties, except onions, says a correspondent of Practical Farmer. Those I have kept in one location year and year out for a long time, and never fail having good crops. One third of the patch is sown each year to clover or soya beans, and plowed under each spring to supply humus to the soil. In conclusion I wish to say that thorough cultivation is absolutely essential to a successful garden. By all means keep the weeds down. Stir the ground often. Don't let ground become encrusted.

And the editor adds this: It is a commendable practice to give one part of the garden each year a thorough cleansing and renewal by growing a crop of clover, cow peas, vetch, soy beans, or anything that can be utilized for the purpose. Cow peas, soy beans, or crimson clover come very handy for this purpose. Even common mammoth red clover will do very well. It can be sown in the spring, and will give a good coat to plow down the next spring. If plowed late and well limed before plowing, it will give a nice, rich, clean soil. If my garden were large enough, I would use only one-half of it every year, putting the other half in clover and changing regularly.

Mule Industry.

Many farmers are not aware that mules sell at an average of $10 or more than horses, but such is the case in the great wholesale markets. The popularity and price of mules have steadily improved for several years, until there is greater profit in the mule than the horse industry. The prejudice against mules in many localities has been prevented the overstocking of the market and the prices have steadily advanced for the past decade, says the Drover's Journal.

Mules have proved invaluable in war, as their hardness and adaptation to all climates make them desirable for transportation service. England bought many thousands of mules during the South African war, and they contributed largely to the subjugation of the Boers. Nearly all armies are now equipped with mules in the transportation department, and for war purposes this hybrid is in great demand.

There were 2,888,710 mules reported at the 1905 census. Texas leads with 391,038; Missouri second with 248,466; Mississippi third with 219,902, and Georgia fourth with 201,060. Texas and Missouri are the leading states the latter sowing the larger increase in the last year. Texas shows a decrease of 7,980 and Missouri an increase of 40,178 head in the last twelve months which indicates the latter state is paying more attention to the mule industry than her southern rival.

The prejudice in northern cities against mules is gradually disappearing and in Chicago and other northern municipalities many heavy mules can be seen daily performing a part of the heavy transportation service.

The mule is particularly adapted for service in the southern states as it is not affected by the hot climate. Nearly all the agricultural work and heavy trucking in the south is performed by mules. It is expected that the Government will soon execute a large order for mules to work on the construction of the Panama canal, as they will stand the climate of the torrid zone better than horses. Mules can be kept more economically, live to a greater age and are heartier than horses.

Killing Squash Bugs.

This is one of the most troublesome insects with which the vine grower has to contend and is difficult to handle. Some melon growers plant an occasional hill of squash with which to feed these bugs and thus attract them from the melon vines. Here they are hand picked and the squash vines kept alive for a trap. Placing a shingle or piece of board near the hills for a night shelter for the bugs enables one to gather them quickly is recommended. Covering the vines with cotton or a box covered with muslin is a good remedy. Powdered charcoal or air slaked lime is used, sprinkled on the leaves. One successful grower relies on land plaster or oyster shell lime, which may be dusted upon the vines through a small fine sieve while they are wet with dew or rain; to be applied as soon as the young plants are up. Mr. Gregory says the air slaked stove lime is apt to be too strong and would injure the plants.—Farmer's Guide.

Hog Notes.

No matter at what season the sows are due to farrow care should be taken to provide them with dry, clean quarters to themselves.

As a rule, after a sow farrows she should not be disturbed in any way until she gets up of her own accord, when she may be given a bucket of slop.

An abundance of milk for the first eight or ten weeks of the young pigs existence, is the best preparation they can have to fit them for profitable growth afterwards.

There is no better feed for young pigs after they have learned to eat than good oats. If they can be ground and made into a slop with sweet skin milk all the better.

The cheapest growth with growing pigs is secured by giving them the run of a good clover pasture and feeding them a slop of middling and skim milk, or bran, oil meal and skim milk.—Ex.

A Valuable New Oat.

Kherson oats promises to become an important forage and stock feeding crop in many sections of the country, since some what extensive trials made with it since its introduction by the Department of Agriculture have demonstrated not only heavy yields, but exceptionally good returns under conditions of drought. A very important feature of the work of the experiment stations throughout the country is the introduction of new crops, and many valuable additions have thus been made to the list of plants which a country is capable of producing. The Kherson oats were brought from Russia in 1896. They have been pretty well tested by the Nebraska station as to their adaptability to the corn belt of the United States. An advance proof of the experiment station work of the Department of Agriculture says of this promising forage crop:

"The climatic conditions most favorable to the growth of oats do not usually obtain in the corn belt, and it has been difficult to find a variety of oats well adapted to this region. It is a curious fact that, although the great corn-producing States are likewise the largest producers of oats, they are not States in which the yield per acre is high.

"The Kherson oat is a vigorous but not rank grower. The straw is short, but leaves are broad and expose a large surface. The berries are light yellow in color and have a very thin hull. It usually weighs well per bushel and matures very early. In the dry season of 1901 it showed remarkable drought-resisting qualities."

The Kherson oat is stated to be a very heavy yielder, and the indications are that in introducing this oat a great service has been rendered not only to the middle west, where the rainfall is scant, but to other sections where drought frequently cuts down the oat yield.

Saddle Horses Scarce.

L. B. Shropshire, writing in the Kentucky Farmer and Breeder, says: "Never in the history of our country has there been such a shortage of saddle and carriage horses in the market as to this day. In New York the past season it has been impossible to supply the demand. The public sales have been attended by more buyers than ever before.

At these sales the bidding was usually strong and the demand for high-class horses was never so great. In fact the condition has become so alarming that many city horsemen are already predicting a famine of fancy and business horses in the near future, and there seems to be little likelihood of western shippers being able to cope with the demand. Throughout the state of Kentucky dealers with perfect unanimity state that they have never known horses to be so scarce, and what is still more deplorable, they report that the supply of young horses coming on is insufficient to meet the demands even in ordinary times."

Small Boy in The Country.

A Perry mother sent her small boy to the country, and after a week of anxiety received this letter: "I got here all right, but I forgot to write before. A fellow and I went out in a boat and the boat stripped over and a man got me out. I was so full of water that I didn't know anything for a long time. The other boy has to be buried after they find him. A horse kicked me over and I've got to have some money for fixin' my head. We are going to set a barn on fire to-night, I should smile if I don't have a me hilly fun. I am going to bring home a tame woodchuck if I can get him in my trunk.—Kansas City Journal.

Japanese Reliance.

One of the most remarkable features of the war with Russia has been the wonderful success which has attended Japanese endeavors to keep their own council and prevent any knowledge from reaching the outside world. All belligerents try to do this, but the necessity of intrusting secrets to a number of persons, some of whom are apt to be imprudent, renders it an extremely difficult task. The Japanese have not only aimed at secrecy, but they have accomplished it to a degree never before attained by any such nation in war.

It is stated that Togo lay for three months in the Tsushima Straits, without ever changing his plans. Rojstevskiy sent out scouts, but he never succeeded in ascertaining the position of his enemy. Neither did anyone else, who betrayed the secret. The diligent news gatherers pursuing their vocation under unwonted difficulties and lending a willing ear to ever scrap that seemed like news, placed him from time to time in various places, but they never were able to penetrate the secret of Togo's whereabouts. No hint of his plans was ever obtained, and the Russians were completely in the dark with regard to them. To this single circumstance much of the credit of his over whelming victory must be attributed.

To deceive the enemy is half of the success of war, and to that end he must be kept in the dark as to the actual situation. The means by which the Japanese have accomplished this are well worthy of the study of those who desire to earn how a war should be carried on.—Courier Journal

Furious Fighting.

"For seven years," writes Geo. W. Hoffman, of Harper, Washington, "I had a bitter battle, with chronic stomach and liver trouble, but at last I won, and cured my diseases, by the use of Electric Bitters. I unhesitatingly recommend them to all, and don't intend in the future to be without them in the house. They are certainly a wonderful medicine, to have cured such a bad case as mine." CHAS. S. HARRIS, Editor
Democratic newspaper devoted to the interests of the city of Columbia and the people of Adair and adjacent counties.

Entered at the Columbia Postoffice as second-class mail matter.

WED. JUNE 14, 1905.

The Louisville Commercial Club is making a good, honest effort to arouse every section of Kentucky to importance of bettering existing conditions in business and business development. No part of the State has reached a perfect model in the development of its resources, and the larger part presents fertility in crudeness. Few, if any, of the States surpass Kentucky in natural resources, yet this proud old Commonwealth is trailing in the rear in the march of development. Our young men find the door of opportunity closed at home, in a large measure, and many of those of an enterprising spirit, without sufficient means for a promising start in business, pack their grips and seek a more inviting field where their energies and talents are used to build their fortunes and develop other sections. This drain, a tremendous one, is one of the main causes that have checked the development, not only in Kentucky, but in many of the old States, yet the people seem indifferent to this loss. Such a theory may seem visionary to some and not well founded, but if you will trace up the removals from this section to the land beyond the river, covering a few years, you will be surprised. Scarcely a family in this part of the country but has a member in some of the Western States. To our certain knowledge, within the last six months, from fifty to one hundred young men have left this county for the North and West, seeking work, yet no effort or but little, on the part of our people to check this reducing process by opening up opportunities at home. What is true of this county, fairly well applies to every county in the State. This of itself would not, in reality, be serious if a like number were coming in from other localities, but such is not the case. We send out our young men to other commonwealths and receive nothing in return save the knowledge and pleasure of the prominent positions they fill. No effort on the part of our people to open mines, build factories and better and broaden transportation facilities, will keep us just where we are, and the next century will find Old Kentucky old in age, decrepid in condition, her youthful vigor gone and in the grasp of slothfulness and indifference. Just the opposite of this is the high aim and ideal of the Louisville Commercial Club. That organization is making an effort to arouse an interest throughout the State, and public spirited people in every county should join in. If every county seat in the State had a commercial club, even though its membership should be but few, and all co-operate with the Louisville Club in an effort to secure enterprise and better public conditions, a few years hence a great change would be witnessed. No town in the State needs united action more than Columbia. The good start made, the present growth and prosperous conditions cannot continue long without organization and intelligent united action. The last three or four years have been good ones for our town and county and the results are due to public spirit at home and not abroad. No one can picture the possibilities of united effort on the part of Columbia. The time is ripe, the day is here for such effort. Shall we sleep or shake off in difference?

Argument to transfer the Caleb Powers case to the Federal Court was made before Judge Cochran last week. The Judges' decision will be rendered not later than July 10.

Russia is now willing to enter into peace negotiations. The Tsar has given signs that he is willing to end the war. It has been a bloody and a costly one to Russia.

Louisville is wide open this week, the soldiers of the lost cause being royally entertained.

There was no preaching at the Christian church here last Sunday, on account of the convention at Liberty.

Geo. Hicks and Miss Maud Fredrick were married here on the 8rd, by G. S. Benson.

News is very scarce in this section, but fleas were never more plentiful.

It is the consensus of opinion among the readers of the Casey County News, that John Henry Thomas, the editor of that mammoth sheet, discovered that he had a job on his hands when he attempted to reply to our "Tomfoolery," as he was pleased to call it. Now we have never claimed that John Henry was a fool, on the contrary we have given him credit with sufficient gumption to know when he had enough of any thing that is not good for him, and my idea of him seems to have been plainly verified in his last attempt to eat "Poor old Tom Benson alive."

It was a bigger meal than he anticipated, and his stomach, however strong and empty it may have been, balked. In our opinion John Henry's liver is out of order. He ought to consult a physician, he might have the "Yal-low Jaundice."

ADVERTISE IN "THE NEWS."

Obituary.

On Monday afternoon, June the 5th, we laid to rest in the Carmel church yard, Bro. Joseph S. Henson, who died on Sunday, June the 4th, at the home of his son. Bro. Henson was taken suddenly ill on Friday afternoon, and was unable to talk afterward. He was born in Casey county, Ky., February the 2nd, 1815, moved to Adair county and resided with his son for the past twenty-five years on a farm on Green river, near Carmel Church.

Bro. Henson was married to Miss Mariah Baker, when eighteen years of age, and to this union there were ten children born, eight of whom are living. Seven reside in the West, and one as before stated, in Adair county. The wife and mother preceded him to the grave twenty years ago. Bro. Henson was one of the oldest Methodists in this county, having been a member of that church for seventy-five years. He had lived to a remarkable old age, having begun early to serve his God; giving both his youth and old age to Him who said: "Remember thy creator in the days of thy youth." His funeral services were conducted by the writer, at Carmel church, in the presence of many relatives and friends.

COLUMBIA, KY. CLARK & PARSON, Jun 28, 1905.

Did Japanese submarines contribute to the destruction of the Russian fleet, making their first big fog prominence as unseen engines of war? Did the surface torpedo boats, handled with skill and the daring of Japanese fanaticism, accomplish the work of destruction? Or was the large number of Russian ships sunk due to the fact that most of the Russians, seeing themselves battered and beaten, opened their sea valves that their ships might not fall into the hands of the enemy, as a few actually did? These are some of the questions which the full story of the fight must answer.

CHEAP LANDS For Homeseekers' and Colonies

The country along the Cotton Belt Route in Southeast Missouri, Arkansas, Northwest Louisiana and Texas offers the greatest opportunities to Homeseekers. Mild climate, good water, cheap building material, abundance of fuel, and soil that will often, in a single season, yield enough to pay for the ground. Land can be bought as cheap as $2.50 an acre. Prairie land at $4. and $5. per acre. Bottom land at $5. and $6. per acre up. Improved or partly cleared land at $10. and $15. per acre up. Some fine propositions for colonies—tracts of 2000 to 8000 acres at $4 to $10 per acre—big money in this for a good organizer. Fruit and truck lands in the famous peach and tomato belt of East Texas, at $10. to $20. per acre up. Write us for information about cheap rates, excursion dates also literature descriptive of this great country and let us help you find a home that will cost you no more than the rent you pay every year.

Rauages of the Cyclone.

A writer in an Oklahoma paper gives the following account of the recent cyclone that passed over a portion of that country. The people who sustained losses are said to be nearly all Kentuckians, and for that reason we reproduce the article:

A week after the terrible cyclone that passed through the south part of this country and destroyed the town of Snyder in Kiowa county, we can give a more accurate account of the damages sustained by our citizens:

There were six people killed in this county; three of them at the home of R. R. Hughes, an account of which we gave last week, and three at the home of J. B. Ralston, viz: J. B. Ralston, his son Fred, and daughter Jessie.

We here give a list of those damaged as given by parties who traversed the path of the cyclone through this country.

Joe Penland lost everything but team and wagon.

G. W. Brake lost everything, including 12 or 13 bales of cotton, except two horses.

R. L. Stringfellow lost everything but a span of ponies and they are hurt.

J. W. Berry and his wife and two children were badly hurt, and he lost all but his stock.

Geo. L. Sledge lost everything, and an envelope containing $40 in money was carried away.

J. M. Sledge lost his house and stock.

Perry Flowers, house and household goods.

J. B. Ralston, son and daughter were killed and everything but their stock destroyed.

J. D. Farmer lost everything but a pair of ponies.

Henry Fourmentin lost everything but a pair of ponies.

M. E. Fourmentin lost his house, barns, threshers, farming implements and everything else. His loss will reach between $5,000 $6,000.

Frank Johnson's property was damaged slightly.

S. L. Boulware lost his house, eight bales of cotton and other property.

The Lock school house was blown to pieces.

Wm. Taylor, postmaster, lost his store building, in which was the post office and a small stock of goods.

F. R. Schaepernolte lost house, implements, horses and cows.

G. S. Smith lost everything but his horses.

J. H. Roberts everything destroyed but his horses.

J. L. Wood lost three horses and a cow.

W. H. Wills lost everything; the house in which he lived belonged to Mrs. W. C. Rodgers and was destroyed.

Jake Huneycutt lost everything but a team of horses and they are badly damaged.

W. S. Cummings had his house and other buildings destroyed.

J. M. E. Johnson lost eight head of horses, two cows and all farming implements.

Frank James lost the house in which Jake Huneycutt lived.

The Francis school house was completely demolished.

Roam Johnson lost all his farm implements.

Will Allen's house was destroyed and lost everything else but a team.

Walter Edwards lost his house and household goods.

The destruction was complete and only could have been worse by a greater loss of human life. While those, who have had their property destroyed, are in sore distress over the loss, yet they are exhibiting Western pluck in making the best out of their condition, and are going to regain their great loss, and with the aid of their neighbors and friends, who were spared this great calamity, will start anew to achieve their fortunes.

We here give a list of what has been contributed towards assisting these unfortunate friends and neighbors:

South Greer school community, $33 cash and $42 in goods; Yeldell, $51.70 in cash and $2.80 in goods; Elmer, $35.90 in money and $180 in goods; Francis school community, $165.50 in money and $73.30 in goods; Prairie Home community, $507.25 in money; Martha, $102.50 in money and more will be given; Altus, $392 in money deposited in bank to the credit of the committee and $120 in goods, and there is about $500 more subscribed.

The following committee represent those who have suffered by the cyclone and will be under obligations for any contributions that will assist our afflicted citizens: A. L. Linker, W. T. Thagard, S. R. Hatton, G. A. Porter and A. A. May.

Summer Feeding.

Mistakes are oftentimes made in the feeding of poultry in the Summer. If the hens are in good condition for laying they will fare much better if compelled to come off the roost in the morning and scratch for their breakfast than if they are permitted to walk up to a feed trough and fill their crops. The morning feed of grain and seeds may be scattered in the litter after they are on the roost at night, so they can begin as early in the morning as they desire. Before going to roost at night they may be given all they can eat, and will digest all the crop will hold before morning.

Pointers for Men.

Nothing pleases a girl so much as to have a young man tease her till she gets mad.

A girl always makes a face after kissing another girl, just as if it didn't taste good.

There never was a man so wise that he did not enjoy being made a fool of by a pretty woman.

No man feels any need of heaven as long as he can sit beside a girl with starry eyes.

No man would ever write a love letter if he thought it would ever be read in a court-room in a breach of promise case.

Every girl thinks that a young man convicted of stealing kisses should be sentenced to solitary confinement with herself for company.

There are lots of girls that can skate along like birds when they are by themselves, that are perfectly helpless on the ice when a man is around.

When a man had the legal right to whip his wife "provided he used a stick no thicker than his thumb," women were just as anxious to marry as they are now.

If you tell a woman her baby looks and acts just like her she is pleased, but if you tell her she looks and acts just like her baby she doesn't like it.

And So It Is.

Man is the only creature that knows he will die. Yet he is the only creature that manifests joy in his existence. It is hard to understand. Every rational man knows that he has no mortgage on the to-morrow; it is not his; he may never see it; he may die before dark. Few let this unchangeable fact fall athwart their path. They laugh and are gay, even when their heads are grayed for the grave.

They hasten to the future of which the wisest have as shadowy knowledge as a fool. The future is forever, and is said to be influenced for eternity by our conduct here. Yet this is nearly the only fact that man is careless about. It is a mystery.—Ex.

Torture of a Preacher.

The story of the torture of Rev. O. D. Moore, pastor of the Baptist church, of Harpersville, N. Y., will interest you. He says: "I suffered agonies, because of a persistent cough, resulting from the grip. I had to sleep sitting up in bed. I tried many remedies, without relief, until I took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which entirely cured my cough, and saved me from consumption." "A grand cure for diseased conditions of Throat and Lungs. At T. E. Paul's, druggist; 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed. Trial Bottle free.

Paducah, Ky., June 8.—Detectives Baker and Moore are at the scene of the mysterious death of Mrs. Ida Hessig, the young wife of Dr. H. T. Hessig, a prominent physician and until recently a distiller. ## CZAR HEARD FROM.

He Indicates a Willingness to Take Under Advisement the Subject of Peace.

JAPAN'S PEACE TERMS UNKNOWN.

Japanese Minister Called by Appointment and Spent Half an Hour With the President.

The British and German Ambassadors Were Also Callers at the White House But Would Not Discuss Their Visits.

Washington, June 9.—The czar has at last been heard from here and the result is not unfavorable to peace. In his recent audience with Mr. Meyer, the American ambassador, the czar indicated a willingness to take under advisement the subject of peace and expressed a warm appreciation of the friendly words of Mr. Meyer, speaking the personal envoy of the president.

The reception of Mr. Meyer was characterized by the greatest cordiality and friendliness and the ambassador's cablegrams to the president, giving a general account of the audience in a distinctly hopeful tone. Mr. Meyer did not bring to the St. Petersburg government an offer of mediation but a "friendly offer of good will" as it was described by Count Cassini, which apparently was gratifying to the czar.

Further than this it is impossible to record the character of the cablegram. Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister, called by appointment at the white house and spent an hour with the president. He was still unable to give the president the slightest indication regarding Japan's peace terms, but it is believed he was acquainted in a general way with the hopeful tone of Mr. Meyer's dispatch and with this as a lever of hope is expressed in the fact that the mikado will meet the president half way in the earnest efforts he is making to assist in bringing about an early peace.

No Request For Peace Terms.

Earlier in the afternoon Baron Kaneko, the Japanese financial adviser, was received by the president and discussed the whole situation for some time. Baron Kaneko said that Japan had not received directly or indirectly any request from Russia for a resumption of peace terms. It was intimated that Japan would be loathe to give any such statement until convinced that the whole situation had changed to the question of peace, with intention of ending the war.

Later in the afternoon Sir Mortimer Durand, the British ambassador, saw the president and still later Baron Speck von Sternberg, the German ambassador, was at the white house for nearly an hour. None of the callers would discuss their visits and it can be stated that with the exception of the call of Mr. Takahira, none of these visits was of great importance.

It is not expected that the situation will change radically in the next day. Until some indication comes from Japan of her attitude in the light of the spirit shown by the czar the negotiations can hardly be expected to progress. Meantime powerful, though friendly, influence is being brought to bear on Japan to be moderate in her demands.

Japan Should Be Reasonable.

It has been pointed out that Japan and Russia must always be close neighbors and that if Japan is unreasonable in her demands, she will again be involved in war with Russia. What effect these representations may have on the mikado is of course hard to say.

Strong hopes were entertained here in the highest circles that London could be relied on for active assistance in counselling moderation to Japan. These hopes have not yet been realized although information has been received that Great Britain will welcome peace. It is still hoped, however, that some assistance from that quarter may be forthcoming. Berlin and Paris are both giving loyal assistance to the efforts initiated in Washington and the result of Berlin's activity is already being felt. Further instructions have been sent Ambassador Morgenthau, St. Petersburg that the British character is not known.

Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, called at the French embassy, where he had a long talk on the situation with Ambassador Jusserand. The ambassador said that he had made an appointment with the president and it is impossible to obtain any information regarding the conversations that have resulted. The ambassador left St. Petersburg in the last 24 hours.

In Missouri the other Sunday a preacher at the end of his sermon said: "Let all in the house who are paying their debts stand up." Instantly every man, woman and child rose to their feet. The preacher seated them and said: "Now every one who is not paying his debts stand up." The exception, a noted careworn, hungry looking individual, clothed in last summer's suit, slowly assumed a perpendicular position. How is it, my friend, I asked the minister, "that you are the only one that is unable to meet his obligation?" "I run a newspaper," he answered meekly, "and the brethren who just stood up are my subscribers and—"Let us pray," exclaimed the minister.—Ex.

Your Town's Trade.

An exchange knew what it was talking about when it published the following: "The trade territory of a town is not at all dependent upon the distance to the neighboring trading points. The territory depends upon the enterprise of the merchants and the size of the town. If a town does not reach out for the trade, using every good method, it only comes as fast as it has to and will only grow as it is forced to. But in the surrounding country by advertising, trade will come from an increased radius and the town will live to the front. It is the men living in the town and not altogether the men living within a certain number of miles that make the town.

Difficulty in Keeping Pledge.

There was a man in Poughkeepsie who, according to Marshall P. Wilder, enjoyed the reputation of being one of the hardest drinkers in that vicinity. Bill's propensity to overindulge was the source of a great deal of anxiety and trouble to his wife. After many attempts, she finally induced him to sign the pledge. He got along well for some days, not touching a drop. In the course of this period of abstinence he chanced to meet an old friend, who proposed a "smile."

"I have sworn off," said Bill, with a visible effort.

"You're a liar!" was the response of a friend.

Whereupon Bill smiled grimly.

"God knows I hope you're right!" he muttered fervently.
